

Adam Moody

Fifth generation Montgomery County Indiana farmer and entrepreneur owns and operates a small farm and state inspected processing facility, 5 retail butcher shops around the greater Indianapolis area.

He is a co-founder of Husk foods which is primarily a sweet corn aggregator and processor that is a product that is in over 300 stores in 6 states. Husk also co packs for 5 other local food companies and aids them in the process of entry into larger points of sale.

Adam has been on two international agricultural trades missions with the Indiana State Department of Agriculture to Taiwan and Viet Nam in 2007 and to China in 2010 and was awarded the 2014 Agri Vision Award by Lt, Governor Sue Ellspermann and the Indiana Department of Agriculture.

He has also set on IFB committees involving local and organic food systems as well as been appointed to committees by the Indiana Board of Animal Health involving meat processing and raw milk production.

Adam and his wife of 35 years Lucy live on their farm and have 2 adult children and 4 grandchildren.