

The Association of Food Technologists (AFT) at the University of Illinois has had a few successful fundraisers this year, so far. In the fall semester, AFT held their first Dad's Weekend Bags Tournament. This event allowed to students to create teams of two with their dad or another student.

This past week, AFT held their annual Cans of Love sale for Valentine's Day. Cans of Love are cans that are filled with candy in which a student or faculty member can add a personalized note to the can, and then AFT will seal the can. This event is a very popular one for both the students and the faculty and provides a great gift for a Valentine's Day special someone.

An upcoming fundraiser that AFT will host this March is a Monical's Pizza dinner. This fundraiser allows students and area residents to eat at local Monical's Pizza Restaurants, and a portion of each purchase will benefit AFT.

All of the money that is collected at AFT fundraisers will go to funding AFT events and activities, like the annual progressive dinner and spring trip. If your company has any opportunities for fundraising, please let AFT know by contacting David Bloom at djbloom2@illinois.edu.

1Eric Greenstein helps with Cans of Love Fundraiser